

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA) provides assistance for COBRA premiums.

COBRAToday ensures that you are in compliance.

What Happened?

The extended COBRA legislation, passed on February 17, 2009, has the potential to dramatically increase the number of individuals electing COBRA coverage.

Assistance Eligible Individuals (AEI) who experience(d) involuntary termination between the dates of September 1, 2008 and December 31, 2009, or AEI who initially declined COBRA coverage or had elected COBRA but have since stopped paying premiums, are allowed to elect coverage during the extended election period. The federal government will provide a subsidy of 65% toward COBRA premiums for up to nine months for these individuals.

How Does It Affect You?

It means more complex rules, more contact with former employees, and more risk of being out of compliance with this changing and evolving provision.

Considering all of this, now is the time to shift the burden of COBRA administration and compliance to COBRAToday. We ensure your complete compliance with all COBRA regulations and provide:

- Constant monitoring of the DOL and Department of the Treasury.
- Expert clarification of the proposed regulations and guidelines.
- Determination of AEI
- Required Notifications for all types of AEI
- Extended Election Period
- Extended Benefits
- Plan Enrollment Options
- Premium Assistance Management
- Guidance on Employer Premium Reimbursement

What Can You Do?

Call us today! COBRAToday takes the worry out of your standard COBRA needs, plus handles the additional subsidy requirements all for no increase over our standard fees. In fact, COBRAToday will handle the subsidy provisions for AEI back to Sept 1, 2008 at no additional charge if you contract with us for one year.
